

Graduate-Level Cohort Opportunity for Maryland Educators Seeking National Board Certification

Thank you for your interest in Towson University and the College of Education's Graduate Programs. We are excited to offer Maryland educators a four-course graduate certificate program aligned with preparation for National Board Certification (NBC). Cohort educators will take one, fifteen-week class per semester from Fall 2023 through Spring 2025. Please visit the Accomplished Teaching for Student Impact Program website for specific requirements.

Educators in the Accomplished Teaching for Student Impact cohort will

- qualify for discounted tuition (in most cases, $0 out of pocket costs)
- complete meaningful, National Board Certification-aligned tasks with instruction from National Board Certified Teachers (NBCTs)
- engage with fellow candidates through a fully online format
- have the option of applying coursework towards a TU Master's degree program

In order to receive a link to the no-fee application process, please complete the 2023 Accomplished Teaching Cohort Interest Form. Please note that space in the cohort program is limited and early registrants will receive priority scheduling.

SCED 647 – Advanced Processes of Teaching and Learning (3 credits)

This first course in the series will provide a critical framework for new NBC candidates to begin the candidacy journey. Educators will examine systems for analyzing teaching behavior, models of instruction for achieving cognitive, social and personal learning objectives, and analysis of classroom application of teaching models. This course will be offered in the Fall 2023 semester and will be followed in the spring by ELED 648 which is aligned with Component 2.

Want to learn more?

Please join a Summer 2023 Virtual Information Session. During the session, you will have a chance to learn more about the program and registration process. Registrants will receive a Zoom link to join the selected session. To receive access to a recording, please register.
